ESTABLISHED IN 1897.

GREENSBORO, N. C., WEDNESDAY MORNING, JULY 12, 1911.

VOL. 14. NO. 295.

Norwegian Army Lieutenant Confesses Twenty Burglaries.

Carl von Metz Meyer is a real "gentleman burglar." For several months he has been pilfering houses in a fashionable locality in Brooklyn, and when finally arrested he calmly admitted that he had committed twenty or more burglaries. He said he was the son of a wealthy banker in Christiania, with branch offices in Munich and London, and that he had obtained a furlough from the army to come to New York two years ago to learn American banking methods. He lost his job last winter and since then had been adding to the income his father allowed him by breaking into houses. He surrendered pawn tickets for goods worth $5,000, on which he had obtained about $200. When committing the burglaries he always wore a dress suit and thus evaded the suspicions of detectives and night watchmen, with whom he often talked in the early morning hours. The picture shows the young burglar—he is twenty-four years old—in the custody of a detective on the way to court.

REPUBLICANS PLACED IN UNCOMFORTABLE ATTITUDE

Progressives Stand on The Tariff Most Disconcerting --- Adjournment Propositions Will Cause Close Rubs is Opinion of Many Senators.

Special to Telegram.

Washington, July 11.—That there will be some close rubs in the Senate on propositions to adjourn without further tariff actions other than the reciprocity bill is the general opinion of Senators. The fact is that some of the Republicans feel mighty uncomfortable in the attitude in which they are placed by the progressives putting them on record as voting against the lowering of the duties on goods in connection with Canadian reciprocity.

An attempt is to be made to vote on reciprocity July 19, the free list bill July 20 and the woolen bill on July 21. Objection was made and the matter went over. Senator Penrose made a request that certain other dates be fixed for voting on the propositions but Senator Bristow said he would oppose adjournment of Congress until after full consideration of not only these three bills but also of the publicity bill.

Senator Bailey, of Texas, offered the farmers free list bill as an amendment to the reciprocity bill and this precipitated a debate on the free list bill, after which Mr. Bailey gave notice that he would insist that the free list bill and the woolen bill be taken up as amendments to the reciprocity bill. He also said that he would address the Senate tomorrow on Canadian reciprocity.

Murder Case Continued.

Raleigh, July 11.—In Wake Superior court today the murder case of Will Weaver for the killing of Ed Pearce at Zebulon, was ordered continued to the September court. Judge Peebles sentenced Lonnie Hall to ten years in the penitentiary for highway robbery in that he made such an attack on John Harris. Ernest Jones came in for a four months sentence on the charge of manslaughter.

INQUIRY

Into The Alaska Land Deal May Last Until Autumn.

Special to Telegram.

Washington, July 11.—The importance of the investigation of the Dick to Dick letter scandal by the House committee on expenditures in the interior department is today made apparent by the list of witnesses prepared for the hearing, which will be resumed tomorrow. The list includes a number of persons in the National spotlight and promises to furnish an inquiry which may run far into the autumn.

The list includes C. P. Taft, Guggenheim, Frank Hitchcock, Walter L. Fisher, and a number of others, also Richard S. Ryan, the Alaska promoter, and Miss M. F. Abbott, who was responsible for the publication of the sensational story concerning the "grab" of the Controller Bay lands by the Guggenheims. It is doubted whether the committee will complete its inquiry by the time Congress adjourns and therefore it will get the House to authorize it to sit during the recess. Every denial from the interior department of the existence of the Dick to Dick letter is giving additional satisfaction to the congressional committee. Sensational developments are expected tomorrow when the committee resumes its hearings.

HUNDRED

Special to Telegram.

Cleveland, Ohio, July 11.—That plans have already been drawn for a 100 story building in New York, 1200 feet high and the tallest building in the world was the announcement here today by Vice President Joyce Mortimer, of the United States Realty Company of New York, to the National Building Owners and Managers Association, in session here.

WATER SUPPLY IN RALEIGH VERY SHORT

Special to Telegram.

Raleigh, July 11.—On account of a really dangerous falling off in the available water supply for the city of Raleigh the street sprinklers have been cut off, the railroads have been directed to discontinue getting water for their locomotives here and some other large consumers who can make other arrangements have been cut off from the city supply so as to conserve the water for necessary uses of the people of the city. The supply has been failing for a couple of weeks, but the condition only assumed an alarming aspect the past few days. However, a gain of one inch in the reservoir was reported today.

The available supply is now estimated to be down to 500,000 gallons per day and the normal demand the past few months has been one million gallons per day. Walnut Creek is the source of the supply and this stream is declared by experts to be even much below what would be ordinarily expected under the drought conditions of the season. However, the waterfall hereabouts is said to be fourteen inches short of normal for the year thus far.

The present water scarcity, it is said, will doubtless work material good in awakening the city officials to the necessity of taking steps for greatly increased supply, possibly bringing the water from the Yadkin river, this being pronounced the best available source for the additional water needed.

HIGH POINT WILL SPEND $90,000 FOR PUBLIC IMPROVEMENTS

High Point, July 11.—Yesterday the city authorities gave out the contracts for grading, macadamizing and curbing certain streets, also for the extension and building of water and sewer lines, amounting in all to about $90,000. This is one of the biggest jobs ever given out by this city, and there will be, it is supposed, quite a number of bidders both from this city and outside. It is the desire of the authorities to have most of this work completed by the end of this year.

Under the contract of the franchise which this city has granted to the North Carolina Public Service Company for the electric street railway, another addition of which had to be built by September 1st. The company has proposed to bisect the town with the new addition by switching off from North Main street into English street, and thence out to the western limits of the city. But English street is narrow and the property owners have made protest against having the line on that street. The terms of said contract are that either the extension in the city or outside (to the interurban line) must be built by the designated time or else the company will forfeit their charter. The outcome of this controversy is of much interest.

IMPROVED ROADS IN CUMBERLAND BEING CONSIDERED

Commissioners Head Party Over Route to Manchester From Fayetteville.

Special to Telegram.

Fayetteville, July 11.—Five county commissioners, a special committee of five prominent men appointed by the board of commissioners and a number of citizens interested in improved highways left here at 7 o'clock this morning on an automobile good roads tour to Manchester and Pinehurst.

The object of the tour is to enable the county commissioners and their special advising committee, by going over the ground in person, to judge as to the feasibility of accepting Leonard Tufts proposition to build on contract for the county at $300 per mile an improved road from this city to Manchester, instead of using convict labor in the construction work. There is also the added purpose of giving a physical impetus to the good roads movement. The proposition is to connect near Manchester with the highway of Mr. Tufts, Congressman William Kent and J. F. Jordan's to Pinehurst, this constituting a high class roadway from Fayetteville to the popular winter resort.

The tourists consisted of W. J. Olive, R. H. Buckingham, J. A. Keith, F. C. Yarborough and A. B. Smith, commissioners; John O. Ellington, W. H. Marsh, T. J. Purdie, Z. B. Newton and Major A. A. Mackethan, members of the special commission; T. J. McAllister, president of the Cumberland County Good Roads Association; G. G. Myrver, representing the Fayetteville Observer; A. B. Millan, F. H. Cotton, Hubert Ramseur, L. Gentry and J. W. Mackethan. The party will reach this city on the return trip tonight.

Special to Telegram.

New York, July 11.—Lillian Graham and Ethel Conrad were today held for the grand jury in the police court on the charge of attempted murder. Bail was fixed at $5,000 each. The presiding judge stated that the story told by W. E. B. Stokes, the millionaire hotel proprietor, had not been contradicted and that his only alternative was to hold the girls.

Sanford Man Arrested in Raleigh.

Special to Telegram.

Raleigh, July 11.—Clarence Moore was arrested here today on the charge of breaking into a store in Sanford. His arrest came about through his having had the address of "Miss Blanch Finch, Raleigh, N. C." in his pocket. He changed clothes in the Sanford store. The slip was found in the pocket of the old clothes and Miss Finch told the Raleigh police to whom she had given the address. After his arrest Moore confessed that he participated in the robbery. He was carried to Sanford this afternoon.

MAGEE IS SUSPENDED.

Philadelphia, July 11.—President Lynch, of the National League, arrived here today and after an investigation indefinitely suspended Sherwood Magee, the Philadelphia ball player who made a vicious attack on Umpire Finnerman in yesterday's game with St. Louis.

TAFT

Against Recall Provision in Arizona Constitution--Statehood in Air in Senate.

Special to Telegram.

Washington, July 11.—The statehood situation in Congress has been thrown more completely into the air than ever in that President Taft is adverse to having any provision for the recall of the judiciary in the Arizona constitution and that he is disposed to veto any bill that permits this clause to remain in the constitution. Senator Oliver Smith, chairman of the committee on territories, today reported favorably on the bill admitting New Mexico and Arizona. Senator Nelson made an adverse report on the Arizona recall feature of the bill.

TOBACCO CASE ARGUMENTS ARE CONCLUDED

Special to Telegram.

Raleigh, July 11.—The argument in the damage suit of Ware-Kramer Tobacco Company versus American Tobacco Company that has been in progress now for four and a half weeks in the Federal court here, was concluded today with the final argument for the defendants by ex-Gov. Chas. B. Aycock, which required the greater part of the day. There was a half hour argument when court first reconvened today, by F. S. Spruill in rounding up his plea for the plaintiffs as brought over from yesterday. Now there remains the charge by Judge Connor to the jury tomorrow morning. This will probably take a couple of hours. Then the case will go to the jury for verdict. The impression is pretty general that there will be a verdict for the plaintiff, though the views as to the amount that will be allowed are varied, ranging all the way from nominal to $50,000 and up. None, however, expect the damages to be anything like the amount sued for since there has been so much pruning of the case in the process of trial.

KENTUCKY REPUBLICANS IN CONVENTION

Special to Telegram.

Louisville, Ky., July 11.—The Republican State convention assembled here today. It will nominate candidates for Governor and all other state officers to be voted for at the next election in November. RURALS AND MADERISTS IN A FIGHT

Mexico City, July 11.—Six rurals and six Maderists were killed and 18 rurals and nine Maderists were wounded in a battle in the state of Puebla last night. One thousand followers of Madero approached the place intending to attack it. A battle ensued and the fatalities stated occurred. The fight resulted because of the demands that Madero remove certain members of his cabinet.

U. S. Will Keep Hands Off.

Special to Telegram.

Washington, July 11.—Positive denial of cable reports from London that the United States has protested to Germany against the establishment of a naval base in Morocco was made at the state department today. The denial was followed by a statement that this government is having nothing to do with the matter.

Officials of Alleged Wire Trust Indicted Under the Sherman Act.

The United States grand jury has returned nine indictments in the United States circuit court at New York against officers of the American Steel and Wire company and of thirty-five other corporations and partnerships in the steel and wire pools which the federal authorities have had for some time under investigation. The indictments are found under the Sherman act and charge a combination and conspiracy in restraint of interstate and foreign commerce and are strictly of a personal nature. The corporations and firms as such are not indicted, but eighty-three individuals operating through the alleged pools are involved as defendants. Prominent among those indicted are Frank J. Gould, president of the Old Dominion Iron and Nail Works company of Virginia, and Charles F. Brooker, vice president of the American Brass and Copper company and member of the Republican national committee for Con-

RURAL CARRIERS GET SALARY INCREASE.

There are 41,562 rural mail carriers in the United States and their salaries aggregate $35,793,000. As the result of an order issued by Postmaster General Hitchcock, the carriers are to receive salary increases during the current fiscal year amounting to a total of $4,000,000. This means an increase of $100 for all carriers on standard routes and a proportionate increase on the shorter routes. The present salary of the carriers of the standard routes is $900 per annum.

All friends of the rural delivery system, and that is practically everybody in the cities and in the country, will rejoice that the pay of the carriers is to be increased. They are worth to the country all that it costs the government to maintain the rural delivery system, and much more. The work of the carriers is arduous and they are not likely to be overpaid for the service they perform. Certainly they are not overpaid at present. While it may be contended that some men who are in the rural mail service are earning more than they could earn if otherwise engaged, it must be admitted that most of the carriers give their patrons efficient service, and so long as we do this the service rendered is worth all it costs.

The two greatest movements ever inaugurated by the Federal government for the benefit of the country districts of the South are the rural delivery of mail and the farmers' demonstration work. The rural delivery system is fifteen years old and was started with eighty-three carriers, who were paid $200 per year. The farm demonstration work began to exercise its influence upon rural life in the South a number of years after the rural delivery of mail had grown to large proportions. Both have been effective in the development of Southern rural life. It is well within the truth to say that there are a hundred newspapers and magazines circulating in the country districts of the South today where but one circulated prior to the establishment of rural mail delivery. This wide dissemination of information has had a marvelous effect upon the lives of the people of the agricultural South. They have become a reading people, and as a result are a well informed people. They are familiar with current events, keep in touch with the markets, and are well informed in regard to most of the public questions and problems of the day. This state of affairs has been attained through reading, and reading of the papers and magazines has been made possible by the daily delivery of mail at the doors of the farm houses. The result of this spreading broadcast of information, this placing the farmers in touch with the balance of the world, has been, as a farmer remarked to the editor of The Telegram recently, that "the farmers are so well informed nowadays they can't be fooled any more."

From an educational and informative standpoint, the rural delivery of mail has doubtless been the greatest policy the government has ever adopted for the assistance and uplift of the farmers. From the standpoint of enabling them to help themselves financially and to realize the greatest possible returns from their lands, the demonstration work is pre-eminent. It has given Southern farmers new conceptions of the value of their soil and concrete demonstrations of its productiveness. The demonstration work is designed to teach farmers to cultivate the soil according to the best methods, so that the largest results may be obtained. Modern agricultural methods will make Southern farmers prosperous beyond the dreams entertained by the most sanguine a few decades ago. This increasing wealth of the farmers will mean increasing business for the rural mail carriers, as the more prosperous there is in the agricultural districts the more letters the farmers will write and the greater will be the volume of other kinds of mail received by them. Scientific diversified farming, the rural delivery of mail, good roads and telephones are some of the things which are becoming common in the South and which will combine to make life in the country pleasant and profitable, as all of the things mentioned contribute both to the pleasure and to the prosperity of the country people.

BOOSTING THE PROPOSED RAILROAD.

Several of the leading newspapers of the State are helping to boost the Greensboro, Roxboro, Henderson and Oxford railroad. The Raleigh News and Observer has mentioned the projected road several times, and yesterday had this to say:

"The proposed railroad from Henderson to Greensboro, via Oxford and Roxboro, would traverse one of the finest sections in North Carolina. It would be a blessing to Greensboro, to every town and the fine agricultural section through which it would pass."

The Wilmington Dispatch advises the people of that city to swat the flies with a baseball bat. The advice to swat is good, but the weapon suggested will be found unsuited for the purpose.

Tom Watson is a candidate for United States Senator in Georgia, and as he proposes to submit his candidacy to a Democratic Legislature this fact is accepted as evidence that Tom is a Democrat again.

The State convention of the North Carolina Farmers' Union will be in session in Salisbury July 26th and 27th. One of the features of the convention will be an address to the members of the convention by Senator L. S. Overman.

News comes from various sections of the country to the effect that there were few marriage licenses issued for July Fourth. The safe and sane movement has made a remarkably strong impression upon the people of this country.

Greenville Piedmont wants to know how many people will be left in Columbia if the hot weather lasts a few weeks longer. But few people will be left in South Carolina if the hot weather continues. They will all seek relief in North Carolina.

That long time friend of the paragraphs, ex-President Castro of Venezuela, is back in that country organizing an insurrection. This is fortunate for the paragraphs, as ex-President Diaz was a subject for bright paragraphs has been worn to a frazzle.

Castro has returned to Venezuela and it is reported that he is assembling an army preparatory to starting a revolution. It is fortunate for this country that Venezuela is not on our borders, as in that case we should probably have the greater part of the United States army maneuvering on the Venezuelan border.

The salary of the Governor of New Jersey is $10,000 per year, and when he is absent from the State a deduction from his salary is made at the rate of so much per day. Governor Wilson was out of the State three days in June and his salary was docked for that time. The money deducted from Wilson's salary goes to the Lieutenant Governor, who is acting Governor when Wilson is out of the State.

Northern people usually have the idea that the summer heat is more oppressive in the South than in their section of the country, yet one never hears of a death from heat prostration in the South, while hundreds have died in the North during the past two weeks from the effects of the heat. This has been an unusually warm summer throughout the South, but the people of this section are fortunate in escaping the kind of heat that kills, which has caused so many deaths in the North and middle Western States.

It is a good thing, in city and country, to keep the buildings painted. Paint pays the user. This is not written for the purpose of boosting the business of the paint manufacturers, but to encourage the owners of homes and other buildings to a course which will improve the appearance of the buildings, thereby increasing the attractiveness of the landscape, and at the same time preserve them. Painted buildings look better than unpainted buildings, and they stand the weather better and last longer than unpainted buildings. Paint is a good thing and is to be had at very reasonable prices. It should be used liberally.

RAIDED SAW DUST PILE.

Five Armed Revenue Officers Attack a Saw Mill Site and Capture It, But The Victory Was an Empty One.

Several days ago The News learned that revenue officers had operated in that section of the South Fork country lying beyond the Whitener bridge, but could get no particulars. Thursday a man told The News all about it and when pinned down to it swore on his honor that what he told was true.

He said for months past smoke could be seen rising from a certain point in the woods, some distance from the beaten highways; he himself had often seen it and wondered if it was a blockader who made the smoke. Always the thin stream of smoke rose from the same place. Others saw it and remarked on it. It was agreed that it was a moon-shine plant.

Thereupon somebody must have informed the officers, for, says our informant, a few nights ago five husky minions of the law descended on the neighborhood, armed with Winchester rifles and small arms. They wormed their way through the woods and tangled undergrowth in the cover of darkness and finally arrived within striking distance of the supposed stillhouse. Meanwhile the smoke rose above the tree tops and was gently wafted away by the balmy South Fork breezes.

The officers crept close and lay on their arms. By and by, when the first faint signs of coming dawn were seen, the redoubtable quintette gathered themselves together and charged down upon the still. Breathless, every nerve tingling and every sinew braced, they rushed forward to overwhelm the unsuspecting makers of illicit whiskey, to be shot at, may be, and if so, to shoot their own big Winchesters in response.

At this point in the narrative our informant doubled up and laughed till he cried.

"Well," demanded the indignant newsgatherer, who feared a hoax, "what did they find?"

"A pile of smoldering sawdust," he replied, "that had been a-burning for weeks, ever since the saw mill pulled up and moved on. And that's all. You know sawdust will burn in a pile that way for weeks and months and has been, known to burn for years. Well, the smoke from that was what we had been seeing, and the revenuers captured it."—Catawba County News.

DON'T BE TOO SOON

(By CARA REESE.)

Maybe you are "too soon." It does not pay to be too far ahead of the general run of people. You may be "too soon" in starting up the particular enterprise, "too soon" in blowing the trumpet or calling a mass meeting.

"Too soon" is as calamitous a condition as "too late," and you have had "too late" drummed into your ears as the very irony of fate all your days. But it is not a whit more annoying and exasperating to be "too late" than it is to be "too soon." The only difference in the irritating circumstance is that "too late" seems to express a finality. But in reality there is no finality, after all. To be "too late" frequently means to be on time for new experiences and an entire change for the better and more suitable. Many a starting point begins where the "too late" of some other condition ends.

But, to be "too soon" is ever and always a soul harrying experience. To be ahead of time with the new device, to write above and beyond the comprehension of the populace, to formulate plans and to map out theories of the vision as you see it while no one else has as much as dreamed of it, are sad and dispiriting accompaniments of being "too soon" in the fields of progress. There is far keener suffering among the "too soon" than in the remorse and regret of the "too late." In the case of "too late," "ye may not enter" the one gate, but there is nothing to prevent entrance through some other door. But to be "too soon," all gates, all doors, all welcome are closed and you are a mockery.

Take a walk around the square, gifted and inventive genius. Store up the "too soon" truths and discoveries as wealth for those who come after. It is folly to either mourn or to rail at conditions. When you are "too soon" you must expect jibes at the best and but small reward for speed and industry.

There was a little girl who once went to a party with fair curled nicely and the daintiest, sweetest frock. The child, in order to hurry up her own caretakers, had proclaimed the party to take place as soon after school hours as the guests might make ready. She went, she knocked. A coarse maid, up to her eyes in dust brush and scrubbing outfit, opened the door and gazed on the dainty one who had come "too soon." "Go away, you brat, till dark," and the door was slammed.

Ah, it was a long, long wait "till dark."

and the little one grew hungry and distrustful. She walked the length of the street as far as she dared, then back again. Little acquaintances now and then passed that way, but they laughed at the predicament. No one in authority noticed her plight. At last, when the lights began to twinkle, the child went home, face tear-stained and garments rumpled somewhat from the first freshness. "Too soon" for the party, "too soon," an early bitterness never forgotten.

Ah, there are brilliant ones who "go home" after a lifetime of knocking in vain, after patient waiting and striving; the horde says "stay out!" To be first has a penalty, to be "too soon" is a bitter joke.

READING CHARACTER

(By ROBERT SNOWDEN.)

A pointed chin is said to be a sign of craftiness, wisdom and discretion.

A soft, fat double chin shows sensuousness and an indolent temperament.

A flat chin shows a cold, hard nature.

A retreating chin is a sign of silliness, and if the brow is receding, of imbecility.

A broad chinned woman is faithful.

A square chin shows a determined will.

A rather long but not flat upper lip denotes eloquence.

A very long, flat upper lip, and a straight mouth is a sign of a low, vicious character.

Where the space between the nose and the red part of lip is short and sharply cut, it indicates refinement, but not much power. Where this space is unusually short there is no force of intellect.

Beware of the person who carries his left foot in toward his right when walking. He is probably a kleptomaniac.

The man of short, nervous step is a business man of energy, and if this stride is only from the knees, he is cold and selfish.

A long stride indicates energy, but of an erratic kind. While a good fellow, the man with the long stride is generally unreliable.

Great statesmen and great philanthropists have a loose, shambling gait, which comes from thinking more about others than about themselves.

The sauntering man is not always a dreamer, but a man with a quick, active brain, who thinks much.

Flat-footed people are usually good natured. Flat footed girls have a sympathetic, kindly nature, while the girl with the arched foot is apt to be selfish.

The vacillating person who changes his mind a dozen times a day sets an uneven pace. Sometimes he walks at a furious rate, which after time dwindles down to a saunter. This is the man without stamina, who works by fits and starts.

A Change of Climate.

Three men had come to see Mr. Blank, a prosperous shoe manufacturer of Rhode Island, who invited them to go over his new factory. The day was warm, and one of the guests was stout, but they accepted the invitation. At the factory they took an elevator to the top of the building, the seventh floor, where the cutting was done. Mr. Blank then conducted his guests through the factory, following the course that a pair of shoes would take in the course of making. He explained each process carefully, and answered many questions. When the party at last reached the first floor the stout man wiped his heated face and turned to his host. "There is one question, Mr. Blank, that I should like to ask." "And what is that, sir?" "I should like to know if we are still in the State of Rhode Island."

Noble Tact.

Lord Rosebery is noted for his tact, and for his ability to say the right thing at the right moment.

On one occasion when he was giving a dinner to some of his tenants, an old man, who sat next to him, was evidently much impressed by the magnificence of the meal, the like of which he had never seen before.

When the ices came on, the chap eyed his portion curiously, and then put such a huge piece in his mouth that he nearly cried aloud with the cold.

"Why," he exclaimed, in surprise when at last he regained his breath, "this pudding's froze!"

With the utmost gravity, Lord Rosebery tasted a little from his own plate, and then, with a face as stern as a judge's, he said: "Great scott, so it is!"

"See here," exclaimed the angry man, "I bought this cane here last week."

"Yes, I believe you did," rejoined the proprietor calmly. "What's wrong with it?"

"You said the handle was genuine ivory, and I find it is artificial," said the irate party.

"That may be true," replied the dealer, "but it is no fault of mine. I import all my ivory from Africa, and the only explanation I can give you is that the elephant may have had false tusks."

A little lad who was found crying, when asked what was the matter replied: "Dad's gone and shaved, and now I suppose I'll have to wear all them red whiskers!"

CULTIVATE HER MOTHER

(By AMANDA MOORE.)

Cultivate her mother—oh, yes, and her sister, too, if she has one! Relations are a potent factor for weal or for woe when a young man goes a wooing, therefore, if you want to be a welcome visitor at your sweetheart's house, be nice to her mother, and make the whole family genuinely like you; so that when you take your departure she will hear kind things about you and not disparaging remarks.

You may think this doesn't count, and that if a girl loves you it won't matter in the least what anyone says. But remember it isn't always love at first sight, and many a promising courtship has come to nothing through the attitude taken up by the family, especially at the beginning, when a girl herself has but a lukewarm interest in you. It is then that an unfavorable verdict may cause her to look at you with more critical eyes and lessen your chances in that direction. Mothers have not the influence they used to have over their daughters, but most of them are still to be reckoned with.

If a mother favors a suitor she can do much to help him and is often more judicious than a father, who frequently does more harm than good by overpressing the worthy man he would like to see his daughter married to, till she hates the very sound of his name.

A mother has much more tact. She can let fall the little word that stimulates a daughter's interest, she can give you opportunities of getting to know each other better, and timely advice how to win that daughter's heart often comes from her.

It will, therefore, be to your advantage to be pleasant to mamma. She will be gratified by little attentions, so bring her a few flowers from time to time, ask her advice, and jump at the chance of doing her commissions.

TRYING TO ESCAPE PRISONER WAS SHOT

Alex Chaffin, Jr., Shot by Guard While Trying to Escape From County Road Gang—Chaffin's Story of Plot Formed by Three Prisoners.

But for the unerring aim of Guard Arthur Jessup the county road force, under the command of Capt. J. W. Tyson, would quite likely be minus three prisoners this morning, and as it is one of the prisoners, Alex Chaffin, Jr., is in St. Leo's hospital with both bones in his right leg shattered. According to Chaffin, who was seen by a Telegram reporter while he was in the jail yesterday afternoon before being taken to the hospital, on Monday night a plot was made by himself, Caleb Hanes, alias John Joyce, and W. F. Stinnette to make a break for liberty, figuring out that if all three were to make a break in opposite directions almost simultaneously they could escape easily.

Yesterday morning between 9 and 10 o'clock the signal was given and Chaffin edged off at a respectful distance and broke into a run. The guards called on him to halt, but he waved a fond adieu, whereupon Guard Jessup brought his Winchester into play and sent a ball crashing through the fleeing prisoner's leg. He fell like a log and the other prisoners who were preparing to join in the flight became as still as statues. Sheriff Jones was at once notified and County Physician G. P. Ross hurried to the scene and bandaged the leg so the wounded prisoner could be brought to the hospital.

It is believed that Stinnette and Hanes plot the flight notion into young Chaffin's head as he is not regarded as a desperate character. He stated yesterday that in planning for the flight none of the trio counted the Winchester or thought of the results that were likely to follow a refusal to obey the command to halt when they started to run. He said that he would not make a second attempt to escape from the road force.

Stinnette's record is well known and he is regarded by the authorities as a man who would do most anything. As for Hanes or Joyce, since being put on the roads he has denied his brother who visited him. It has been conclusively proven that he is a married man, as his wife has called at the county jail to obtain his address since he was sent to the roads. Chaffin stated yesterday to Jailor May that had Hanes remained in jail a couple of days longer he would have escaped, adding that his brother was arranging to bring him tools and slip them in. Jailor May informed him that he would have seen the tools long before Hanes had an opportunity to rest his optics upon them had they been brought there.

Chaffin stated that he hoped they would keep him at the hospital until he was nearly well, as the attention as well as the cuisine was much better there than at the county-hotel-hospital. He was reminded, however, that he need not expect the best as the jail was a place to be abhorred and if prisoners were treated like kings the building would speedily have to be enlarged. He replied that this was so, but the idea hadn't occurred to him before.

STYLE AND ECONOMY

WOMAN OF TASTE CAN MAKE THREE GARMENTS DO.

Discretion Must Be Used in Selecting Style and Material—Is Then Prepared to Meet Any Social Emergency.

The woman who understands making a good appearance, and who, in this event, would buy her materials with taste and select styles with discretion, finds no difficulty in making three garments the basis of her summer wardrobe. These would consist of a trim tailored suit for street wear, a dressy indoor gown that could be varied with gumples and other accessories and an attractive wrap for evening and fine afternoon wear.

With this trio of pretty things not too smart or too simple for day or evening occasion, she is provided for any social emergency, and may travel with ease in Europe or stop at good hotels in her own country. Accessories would be in corresponding simplicity—one good hat for day, with extra trimmings to put on when some special dressiness called for it, a neat pair of day shoes and smarter black slippers and two pairs of white ones; a soft silk petticoat, a long underslip for the indoor dress, etc. There would be many little things needed, of course, but these could be added to by degrees, so that the outfit at first would not seem so great.

In making the summer wrap so much latitude is allowed for cuts, materials and colors that one needs to consider mainly becomingness and cost. Something loose and of airy texture is desirable, but the wrap itself may be in kimono form, a species of short mantle, or be in the shape of a long, perfectly straight scarf, looped at the back and caught under the arms for sleeves. Some short wrap styles suggest the talma of the sixties, the same sharp points being used at the front, with the rounded backs a little shorter or longer.

Soft silks in rich colors or else in pure white are used under marquisettes, velvings and grenadines for these becoming and needed garments. But if in kimono style, they are still more frequently unlined, as it is quite the thing to have the lines of the figure show through, and if the gown itself is made a rich color the slight veiling made by the coat makes it still more effective.

Our illustration shows a short coat section of a plain gored skirt, the two pieces representing an unusually smart model for the street suit. The gown material is a champagne-colored summer serge, the banding is of white guipure put over black taffeta and the little watered pieces on the revers of the coat are of moiré poplin in a pale azure. The buttons of the coat are also covered with the blue.

A very becoming feature of this short jacket is the shaping of the sides and sleeves in one, this resulting in one-piece sleeves on the kimono order. The back is in one piece and the double breasting adds much to the jauntyness of the short cut. A coat with such dressy, flaring revers and short sleeves, even if trimmed rather plainly, could, with suitable accessories, be made almost the piece de resistance of the summer wardrobe. Then if the figure is solid enough not to need extra thickness there are many textures that could be made up without a lining such as surah, white alpaca, poplin, etc.; the revers, collar and cuffs could be soft finished, too, so that the whole costume would have a summery look, whatever its color. A summer weight satin, in black, violet, gray or blue, is often used for the most prim of these tailored suits.

With a Velvet Blouse.
It is hard with a velvet blouse to get a coat on, as the velvet sticks and refuses to budge. This can be avoided by making an extra pair of sleeves from a bit of silk and slipping them on before donning the coat. The rest is easy.

GREAT SPEECHES DELIVERED AT NATIONAL EDUCATION MEETING

Measuring Mental Capacity of Children Subject of Striking Address—"Sex Hygiene" And "Industrial Schools" Were Other Subjects Discussed Yesterday.

Special to Telegram.

San Francisco, July 11.—Great interest was manifested by those who attended today's sessions of the National Education Association, in the speeches delivered by a number of experts in education from different parts of the United States. These speeches covered a wide range of subjects, including: "The Measuring of Children's Capacity by the Binet Scale," delivered by Henry H. Goddard of the New Jersey School for Feeble-minded, Vineland, N. J.; "Requisites of the efficient Teacher in Industrial Schools," by George W. Gerwig, Secretary of the Board of School Controllers, Allegheny, Pa.; "Sex Hygiene," by Francis M. Greene, M. D., Cambridge, Mass.; "The Potentiality of the School Garden," by Cyril A. Stebbins, Instructor in Agricultural Education, University of California, and "Elementary Science for the High School," by Prof. W. C. Morgan, University of California.

The addresses that most interested those attending the convention were the ones on measuring children's mental capacity by the Binet Scale, and Dr. Greene's paper on "Sex Hygiene." In discussing the efficacy of the Binet measuring system, Mr. Goddard said in part:

"The research department of the New Jersey Training School for Feeble-minded Children, has carried out a systematic testing of an entire school population of two thousand children by the Binet method. The results amount to almost a mathematical proof of the accuracy of this system. It shows that there are 4 per cent of children who are precocious or better in mentality than the average child, 78 per cent are normal, 15 per cent are backward, and 3 per cent feeble-minded. This ratio probably holds almost universally."

"We should, therefore, have schools or special classes for these precocious children in order that the natural advantage with which they are born should not be lost and that they should not learn bad ways and bad habits, from being in classes that go so much slower than they are able to go. The 15 per cent that are merely backward should be in special classes so that they may be coached and helped along and enabled to get through as much of the school work as is absolutely necessary to make them useful. The 3 per cent that are feeble-minded should be in colonies or institutions where they can be cared for and enabled to be happy and partially useful as long as they live, but if this is impossible they should be cared for in special classes in public schools where they are not asked to learn reading, writing and arithmetic, but are taught to do those things with their hands which they can do, and the doing of which makes them happy. They must never marry because the studies at the Vineland Institution have shown that 65 per cent of feeble-mindedness is hereditary. Therefore if these children grow up and marry they will perpetuate the race of feeble-minded persons."

"It has also been shown in this testing of an entire school population that some children are in classes that are way ahead of their mental capacity. These children run all the way from one year to three years ahead of their capacity for learning. In other cases children are behind what they ought to be from one to three years. Two tendencies are shown to prevail in teaching. First, to keep all children as near as possible at an average, keeping those that are dull up to the average, holding those that are precocious down. The other tendency is to let those children that are very backward go, and not give them the attention they need. They are, as a result, farther backward than their mentality really warrants, or on the upper scale, children who are a little precocious are encouraged, spurred on and placed in classes that are even higher than their mental attainments can reach. This is an injustice to both cases."

"In this misplacement of children, getting them too high or too low for their mental capacity, lies the reason for a large amount of truancy and incorrigibility; also the fact that precocious children often break down. It is not because they are precocious, but because their precocity leads teachers and parents to push them too far ahead."

Mr. Goddard then goes on to tell of the tests made of the Binet Scale by other prominent educational workers, among whom are Prof. Huey, formerly at Lincoln, Ill. Miss Johnson in England, and by several other workers who have not yet published their results. He finds in each case that a favorable report has been made upon the Binet system, and advocates its use in institutions of learning, stating that, in a great measure, its adoption will alleviate the apparent mental discrepancies now prevalent in our schools, and strongly tend toward the production of men and women better calculated to grapple with the problems that will confront them later on in life. The Binet measuring scale for intelligence has received official sanction in New Jersey.

Dr. Francis M. Greene, of Cambridge, Mass., struck a new note in education, when he addressed the association on the subject of "Sex Hygiene." He advocated the inclusion of biology and sex hygiene in the school curriculum predicting for these installations a vast benefit for the men and women of future. The doctor said in part:

"Initiative in sex hygiene was taken by the medical profession but conditions, the roots of which are embedded in fixed social ideas and customs delegate its teaching to the schools."

"Ignorance concerning sex questions must be dissipated. Work should begin primarily in the homes of the children, but this is difficult in the United States because of the loose family ties, and the incompatibility of parents and the independence of older children. This spirit of independence breeds a will to have; not a will to do without—which is self-control. This naturally places the problem within the jurisdiction of the public schools, and makes it one of vital importance to the race of the future."

"Children of today are destined to be units of a future society characterized by a single standard of morality for both sexes. A child must be so trained as to make it possible for him to live up to the high standard that will be demanded of him. Social ideas must be changed to social ideals. Sex instinct should be respected and converted into natural channels by teaching biology in schools. Knowledge of biology and Sex Hygiene must be made requisites for teachers' certificates. Such knowledge will lead to sympathy not only with externals but with deeper impulses and produce an environment favorable for the development of physical cleanliness and individual responsibility."

Dr. Greene advocates the teaching of biology by specialists and says the ethical possibilities of such training are unlimited, holding that if properly taught, these two studies will promote a habit of thought, speech and action, of a purity that will have great influence in future generations.

George W. Gerwig, Secretary of the Board of School Controllers, Allegheny, Pa., in his address, "Requisites of the efficient Teacher in the Industrial Schools," laid great stress upon the necessity of engineering in a pupil "The right attitude toward his work." Mr. Gerwig summed up his educational attitude in these words:

"Education should be the training for service and in service. It demands (1) that every pupil be trained to develop all his powers; (2) that this training be dedicated to some superb service for his fellow."

In his speech on "The Potentiality of the School Garden," Prof. Cyril A. Stebbins, Instructor in Agricultural Education, University of California, lays great stress upon the garden as the means, not only of giving health to school children but also of inculcating the theory of evolution and that optimism which gives solidity and character to adolescence. The professor said in part:

"The school garden offers opportunity, through the birds, the insects, the flowers, the trees, in fact, through all the Creator's work, to build personalities sanely, according to the laws of evolution and physiology. The garden may be made an embryo community in which the child comes in touch with those factors which make for its own community life and the work of the world."

Prof. W. C. Morgan, also of the University of California, treats of the necessity of a general science course in the high schools. He quotes school statistics to prove that less than 10 per cent of those that enter high school go to college and that more than one-half of the high school students are found in the freshman year. The other 50 per cent dropping out before the end of the four years' course. Drawing his conclusion from these statistics, Prof. Morgan makes a strong plea for the establishment of a course in general science in the first year of high school—a course treating with the fundamental ideas affecting the life and welfare of mankind. He states that such a course cannot help but be a great benefit to those who go forth early in life to battle with the problems that confront maturity.

"General science," says the professor "will not only give to all students ideas which will be of the greatest service to them, but by eliminating elementary material common to all, it will advance the standard of work in subsequent scientific courses. It makes a most appropriate introduction to agriculture,

TAKE CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

Mrs. Rena Hare, of Pierce, Fla., tried Cardui and afterward wrote: "I was a sufferer from all sorts of female trouble, had pain in my side and legs, could not sleep, had shortness of breath. I suffered for years, until my husband insisted on my trying Cardui. The first bottle gave me relief and now I am almost well." Try Cardui. "It will help you."

REVIVAL OF GOLD BEADS

String of Alternate Plain and Chased Beads is One of Latest Novelties.

Gold beads are in fashion. Old strings that have not been worn should be brought out and if tarnished they can be brightened by hot soapsuds or a good silver polish.

The newer beads are larger than the old ones, some the size of a small marble. These are not in good taste.

A novelty is the string of alternate plain and chased beads. Sometimes the entire string is of encrusted gold ones, but they are hard to keep clean. A collar effect made of rows of small beads is becoming to the girl with a slender throat. One of the new designs has nine rows, each bead not larger than an ordinary pinhead.

Gold beads are not especially becoming worn next to the skin, so they should be used to brighten a dark gown rather than for a decolette frock.

The Wheel Track to Eternity.

Time is the most important thing in human life—for what is joy after its departure?—and the most consolatory—for pain, when time has fled, is no more. Time is the wheel track in which we roll on towards eternity, which conducts us to the incomprehensible. There is a perfect power connected with its progress, and this operates upon us the more beneficially when we duly estimate it. Listen to its voice, and do not waste it, but regard it as the highest infinite good in which all finite things are resolved.—Wilhelm von Humboldt.

Breakfast Caps.

The new nets flowered in colors are being turned into fetching breakfast caps for the girl who loves the picturesque. One of the new models has a deep tan o-shanter crown fitted into a crinoline band and an inch and a half wide covered with folds of gold tissue ribbon. Over each ear is draped a pointed jabot effect of lace to match the net that fell to the shoulders and framed the face on each side like a sixteenth century headgear. Over each of these points was a single pink rose, or a bunch of pink apple blossoms.

Should Have Heeded Alarm.

Because it had lied to him before, James L. Ogden of Newark refused to believe the burglar alarm in his house recently, and now he is mourning the loss of several hundred dollars' worth of silverware. Several times within the last few months Ogden has been awakened by the burglar alarm. Each time he looked for a burglar but found none. A short time ago he learned that the alarm was set off by jarring of passing trolley cars. When aroused the other night by the ringing of the alarm, he heard the rumble of a trolley car and decided that the car was responsible for the alarm, so he just reached out of bed, stopped the gong, and went to sleep again. Next morning it was discovered that a pane of glass had been cut out of a window and that the silverware was gone.

COTTON LETTER TO J. E. LATHAM.

New Orleans, La., July 11.—Liverpool showed a decided resistance to decline today, particularly in old crops, July-August holding at 110 to 130 points above New York prices. Spot sales, 10,000. That present prices are acceptable to the mills is shown by the advice from Boston that 31,000 operatives had found employment, many manufacturing establishments in New England reopening after having been shut down for weeks. 13½¢ for August in New York is more than two cents lower than it was a short while ago and should the rains continue, new crop receipts will be delayed, which is a consideration.

Our market opened about 14 up on new crops, reacted a few points, but soon steadied again. There was not the same desire to sell as in the past few days.

The map this morning showed cloudy weather in Texas, only rain 32 at Houston. Indications are for continued unsettled weather in western belt with a cool wave coming on Oklahoma, northwest Texas and north Arkansas, with prospects for more rain in that quarter.

Part cloudy weather and local showers are indicated for the rest of the belt.

Bluff Quite Like Men.

"No, sir," said the showman, "animal trainers are not what they used to be. I'm not speaking of the elephant men—they've got to deliver the goods just as I had to when I was handling the elephants. But take the lions and tigers—in the old days there was no kindergarten school for them. They were handed over to us when they were three, four or five years old, full grown, and with a full knowledge of the goods they could deliver.

"That was the kind of animal we had to train.

"Did we go right into the cage with them? No; we weren't quite so rash. We sized the animal up first. A lion or a tiger is a good deal like a man. The one that walks up and down the cage and growls and looks ugly can be counted on to be a bluff. The one that you want to look out for is the one that sulks and lies back in his corner and doesn't say anything. When you get into the cage with a critter like that he is not apt to say much. He simply does things."

Inexplicable.

"He is generally known as a hard-headed business man, isn't he?"
"Yes."
"There's something I wish you would explain, if you can. What is it that causes a hard-headed business man to pay money to a woman whose name need manhandling—a woman whose general appearance is slovenly and who evidently finds it difficult to make ends meet—why, I say, should a hard-headed business man go to such a woman for the purpose of getting her to tell his fortune—to give him pointers concerning the management of his affairs—to tell him when to buy and when to sell?"
"Oh, thunder! You might as well ask me to tell you why a woman who knows perfectly well that you are lying when you tell her she is beautiful keeps tempting you to repeat it and finally gets to hating your wife."

Would Not Look Pleasant.

It took two attorneys and a doctor at Erie all the afternoon one day recently to take a photograph of a mule. They wanted Mr. Mule's picture to use in a lawsuit against the Katey railroad. It seems the mule tried to kick an engine off the track and failed, or something like that. The owner of the mule sued for damages and the attorneys and doctor thought the best way to secure judgment was to take a photograph of the mule and its injuries to exhibit to the jury. So they went out to the farm with a camera and the mule was so restless that it took them all the afternoon to get the picture.

Letting in the Dear Public.

"It will cost us seven cents a bottle to prepare this remedy," announced the head chemist to his employer.
"Good; put it up in packages bearing the words: 'Price $1 at all drug stores.'"
"But—"
"Sell it to the trade at 42 cents a bottle, and the trade can sell it at 85 cents. The public expect cut rates on all standard remedies nowadays and we've got to give them what they want."

HER REPLY WAS PERPLEXING

Reginald is Unable to Decipher Missive From Sweetheart in Answer to Marriage Proposal.

Gladys Helen Montague, her transparent red-gold hair glittering in the sunlight, sat at a mahogany desk writing her answer to Reginald Fitzmaurice's proposal. Gladys's calligraphy was of the style which makes three characters perform the duty of twenty-six. In reply came:

"My Dearest Girl—Your answer has made me the happiest man in the world. How did I dare to hope that you would stoop to bless such as I? I pray that I may be worthy of you, my darling. I long to press you to my heart—Thine, Reginald."

"My Dear Miss Montague—On Wednesday I start on a tour round the world. If at any time you should change your mind a word from you will bring me to your side. My letters will be forwarded from the club.—Faithfully yours, Reginald Fitzmaurice."

"Dear Gladys—After a sleepless night spent in the vain endeavor to decipher your note, I have written these two answers. Will you kindly return immediately the one which does not fit? I cannot stand this strain.—Your anxious Reginald."

DESERVED IT.

Policeman—Why did you throw that joke writer out of the window?
Magazine Editor—He came in here and asked me if duck pants were made out of feathers.

Where She Started.
"She may be very masculine in some things, but she is very feminine in some others."

"What others, for instance?"
"Well, in reading a novel. I asked her the other day how she liked a novel I had loaned her and she replied that it was splendid, that it gripped the attention of the reader right in the windup."

Biding Her Time.
"Mamma," said little Beatie, looking wistfully into her mother's face, "may I carry the baby awhile?"
"No, indeed, my little darling; you are too young and small; you might let it fall."
"Well, mamma," was her disappointed response, "then may I have it when it is worn out?"—Metropolitan Magazine.

Taking No Chances.
"My son, don't be in such a hurry about marrying this girl who you say has so many other lovers. Remember the old adage about marrying in haste."
"Yes, but if I don't marry in haste, now she's willing, she might change her mind."

Put Out of Business.
"You poor man," said the kind-hearted lady, "what brought you to your present condition?"
"The development of civilization," replied the mendicant. "I used to have a business that paid well."
"What was it?"
"Buildin' cigar store Indians."

Another Kind.
"I had to laugh at that fellow with the new automobile the other day—the one, you know, who boasted he had such influence."
"Why did you laugh at him?"
"Because he was sitting by the road with his machine stalled, waiting for a man to come along with a pull."

When They Saw It.
"Did you enjoy the scenery in Italy?"
"Oh, we did not see the scenery until we got home and looked over the post cards we had collected. You know we motored through."

GO BACK TO THE WILD LIFE

Marauders Doing Damage in the South Are Thought to Be Wolf Dogs.

Are the animals which are causing so much consternation among the farmers and planters of Tennessee parish by their killing of small animals and fawns really nothing more than semi-savage dogs? This is a question which is being argued among the interested people of that vicinity and the officials of the game commission, who have been asked to give their aid in exterminating the pests, the New Orleans Times-Democrat says.

Until recently no one questioned the statement that the animals were wolves, but a few weeks ago one of the animals was killed, and was discovered to be a dog with just enough of the wolf characteristic to prove that he had lived with the "varmints" for several years at least. Whether this is an obsolete case or not is a question which will be settled when the wolf drive, which is being planned by the game commission for the next month or so, is held.

It is a known fact that wolves were at one time numerous in this part of the state, but ten years ago they seemed to be scarce. It is only during the past five years that they have become so numerous as to make an appeal to state officials necessary. The fawns are being killed in great numbers by the so-called wolves, and the small live stock of the farmers is unsafe unless protected by strong fences.

WEAPON OF THE PAMPAS

Primitive, but Formidable, is the Bola, Effectively Used by the Patagonians.

In pre-quinque days, terminating with the Spanish invasion, these sons of the pampas lived a much more athletic existence; for today the Tehuelche, like the gaucho, will not walk a hundred yards if his horse is close at hand, and it usually is. To the horse is probably due the disappearance of the sling and the bow and arrow, as well as the more prevalent use of that unique and characteristic weapon of the pampas, the boleadores, or bolas.

This consists of two or three rawhide-covered balls, connected by rawhide, to be swung around the head, and hurled from the saddle by one of the balls, slightly egg-shaped, called the manilla, or hand-ball, with the result that the quarry is entangled around the legs, and incidentally struck and pounded by the balls themselves. The more primitive bolas were round stones, to which rawhide guanoes thongs were attached in a groove. Later these were covered with rawhide for horses, and the lines doubled, and now many bolas are filled with shot or iron. Three-balled bolas are used for horses, while two balls serve for ostrich and sometimes guanoes, which are boled about the neck. A single ball, called the bola perdida (lost ball), with an attached string, used as a hurling-stone, was undoubtedly the most primitive form of this formidable weapon. Horses are never boled by a man on foot, for the obvious reason that they must be taught not to fear a man coming thus, this precaution enabling a lone dismounted man to approach his horse.—Charles W. Furlong, F. R. G. S., in Harper's Magazine.

Do You Read the WANT ADS?

Have you found out what interesting news is contained in the want page? There is a reason why want ads are interesting to everybody. Supply and demand create a market. The man who has an article which he has no further use for, with the assistance of a little want ad, can find readily the other man who is looking for just that article. On the other hand the man who is looking for some particular article can find the man who has it and who it perhaps has not occurred that he can sell it, thus by means of the want ad purchasers and sellers for small articles get together.

Improvements to Fire Alarm System Are Being Considered

The city is investigating the matter of greatly improving the city fire alarm system and also putting in a police telephone system. Inspector Milton, of the fire alarm system, has been investigating certain improvements and for the past two days he has had Chas. F. Maule, representing a concern selling supplies of this nature, of Cincinnati, here figuring on the cost of putting in the improvements.

Inspector Milton recommends an increase in the number of fire alarm boxes and a six-circuit switchboard in the place of a two-circuit board now in use. Then there are too many tappers on the lines and an automatic repeater for the tappers is necessary. He also recommends placing the system in underground conduits, the Bell Telephone Company having prepared one tube for the use of the city for this purpose when the company put its wires underground. The inspector also recommends a police telephone system as this would do the work of two policemen and an officer could summon help instantly to any portion of the city without having to walk to a phone and wake the owner up in order to use it.

The commissioners are considering the improvements, but it will likely be several days before any action is taken.

Big Pythian Meeting Scheduled in Wilmington.

Wilmington, July 11.—The joint committee from the several local lodges on arrangements for the big Pythian meeting to be held tomorrow night for the purpose of installing Col. Walker Taylor as Grand Vice Chancellor of the order in North Carolina, held a meeting last night to arrange the details. Dr. W. C. Galloway, the chairman, presided, and Joseph W. Little, Esq., the secretary, kept a record of the proceedings. Following the installation ceremonies there will be a number of short talks by Supreme and Grand Lodge officers who are expected to be in attendance and the meeting will most likely prove one of the most interesting and instructive held in many years. The Supreme Lodge officers, who will be here to audit the books of the Supreme Keeper of Exchequer, Captain Thomas D. Meares, and the Grand Lodge officers will arrive tomorrow morning. They will be met at the union station by a delegation and will be taken to the beach in automobiles. After spending the day at the delightful resort they will be brought back to the city in time for the meeting in the evening. A circular letter was drafted at the meeting last night to be mailed to all the Pythians in Wilmington requesting their attendance on the occasion. Some days ago Irving B. Tucker, of Whiteville, District Deputy Grand Chancellor, sent a letter to every lodge in the district, urging them to send representatives to the meeting.

MANY KILLED AND SCORES INJURED IN BIG RAILROAD WRECK

Bridgeport, Conn., July 11.—Many lives were crushed out instantly and sixty or seventy persons injured frightfully when the Federal Express, running from Washington, D. C., to Boston, over the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, was hurled over a viaduct here by an open switch.

Fire broke out in the wreckage, adding to the torture and suffering of the imprisoned passengers. The fire department extinguished the flames and the firemen assisted in rescuing the injured.

Ambulances carrying doctors hurried to the scene and they did their best to save those under the debris.

Twelve bodies had been taken out of the twisted wreckage by noon, including the engineer and fireman, who were so mutilated, it is thought they must have met instant death.

Forty-four injured are in the hospital and nearly a score more received injuries not severe enough to prevent them from continuing their journey.

The express left Harlem river about an hour late. It was going at high speed when the open switch, a mile and a half west of the Bridgeport station was struck.

The switch was near the tower at the junction of Fairfield avenue and State street. There was one tremendous crash, an instant of intense silence and then the groans and shrieks of the wounded.

The wreck was almost complete, five cars having gone over, only three cars of the long train being left on the track.

The engine, twisted into junk, was two hundred feet south of Fairfield avenue. Behind were the mail and baggage cars, while the Pullmans and coaches were in a mass in the rear.

The day coach was entirely crushed and in it the deaths were many, five bodies being removed at once.

Three Pullmans were almost completely crumpled up, but appearances indicated that the passengers in a measure were protected by the strength of the cars.

With firemen, policemen and doctors working as fast as possible, the dead and injured were laid out upon the lawn of a residence in Fairfield avenue. As fast as the ambulances came the injured were sent to hospitals.

In the wreckage of the engine was a body thought to be the engineer, who had died at his post. A babe about a year old was found in one car. It was alive and had become separated from its mother, Mrs. W. V. Cleppane, of Cherry Creek, Md., and its aunt, Mrs. Beatrice Cleppane, both of whom escaped with minor injuries, chiefly wounds on the head.

In another coach a Mrs. Whalon, of Philadelphia, was taken out alive but her child was dead under her. Mrs. L. W. Page, of 2223 Massachusetts avenue, Washington, D. C., who was with her maid and child, escaped with minor hurts.

The members of the St. Louis National League baseball team, on their way to Boston, who were in the last Pullman, all escaped injury. Their car stayed on the track but its sudden stop at the moment of the crash threw every one of the ball players out of his berth. Without waiting to dress completely the players hurried from their car, climbed down the viaduct and spent a strenuous two hours helping railroad men, policemen and surgeons at their work in the wreckage. As a matter of fact, the mistake of a switching crew in the New York yards probably saved the lives of most of the players. When the team boarded the train out of Philadelphia they were in the fourth car from the engine, but when the cars were taken off the ferry after circling Manhattan Island, the switchmen accidentally put their coach at the end of the train.

DON'T WANT BAR IN NEW BRISTOL HOTEL.

Bristol, Tenn., July 11.—Temperance people here, including an official of the company that built and now owns the Hotel Bristol, are assisting in the fight to prevent the new hotel from having a bar. Counsel has been employed to object to the opening of the bar and issuing of a license.

Judge Kelly stated from the bench that if the charge is true that the same parties that are to manage the Bristol hotel knowingly allowed liquor to be sold in a Chattanooga hotel under their management that they could not have a license.

Women and Society

Auto Hay Ride.

In the large auto truck belonging to the Jennings Commission Company, piled high with hay a merry party of young people enjoyed a delightful hay ride Monday evening as the guests of Miss Laura Clark, who entertained in honor of her house guest, Miss Janie Marshall, of Danville, Va. The crowd left about 7:30 o'clock started on the jaunt along the smooth road to High Point. At the top of the long hill beyond the fair grounds the party found awaiting them an excellent picnic supper spread out upon the grass at the roadside. An automobile had been sent ahead to prepare this delicious meal, which, consisting of all "goodies" known to picnics, was greatly enjoyed by the young people. They then climbed back to their places in the truck and went spinning to High Point, which they covered from end to end by numerous trips. The return was made at a late hour and all the guests were safely sent down at their doors in the "we, sma' hours" of Tuesday morning. The party was chaperoned by Miss Myrtle Alderman and C. W. Jennings and all the members passed the evening in a most pleasant manner, greatly enjoying the unique plan and the delightful originality of the entertainment prepared by their charming hostess.

The next feature of entertainment to be given by Miss Clark in honor of her guest will be a brilliant reception to be held Thursday evening. A large number of couples from the younger society of the city will be the guests of Miss Clark and a happy occasion is assured all so fortunate as to be present.

Dance At The Park.

The regular Tuesday evening dance in the pavilion at the park was a merry occasion. Thirty couples were on the floor throughout the evening and excellent music from Hood's orchestra sent their feet moving gracefully in step across the garnished floor. The dance extended until a late hour and the event was greatly enjoyed by all present.

The Wheeler Philatheas.

A most enjoyable and well attended social gathering was held last evening by the Wheeler Philatheas class at the home of the teacher, Dr. J. H. Wheeler, on North Cedar street. The young ladies in spite of the threatening weather were out in practically full attendance for the event, after which all the guests declared that they had spent the happiest evening in many a day, entertaining themselves. They made themselves thoroughly at home on the porch and in the parlors and library of the handsome home of Dr. Wheeler. Delightful music on various instruments was furnished at frequent intervals by several members and the teacher himself. After a couple of the most pleasant hours, delightful refreshments of ice cream and cake were liberally served.

After a tour of two weeks Mr. Combs will return with his bride to this city, where he is manager of the savings department of the Greensboro Loan and Trust Company. THACKER & BROCKMANN.

MURDERERS ARE CARRIED BACK TO CHATHAM COUNTY

Deputy Sheriffs W. H. Ward and James Wright, of Chatham county, yesterday at noon led away to prison at Pittsboro the two murderers of "Bill" Frazier, Elisha and David Gunter, who were captured at the Southern depot Monday morning by Policemen Foushee, Jones and Glenn. The deputies substantiated the stories told here of the brutality of the crime, saying that after a quarrel over some fixtures of a blockade still which the Gunters alleged that their victim had stolen in company with a brother, Sandy, and a man named Columbus Williams, they called Frazier to his door and shot him dead at the feet of his wife and mother. His body was literally riddled with bullets from guns in the hands of all the men of the party, and death followed almost instantly.

The wife and mother of the dead man swore out warrants against the quartet, who immediately left the vicinity and were not seen until their arrest, though David and Elisha claim that they have been in the state frequently since that time, and sent the body of their brother, Sandy, to the old home for burial when he died of disease in Mayberry, W. Va. where the trio were employed as miners since their flight. Williams is still at large and at present it seems that the men captured here will be forced to hear the brunt of punishment for a heinous crime. True bills of indictment for all the men have long ago been returned by the Chatham county grand jury and it is thought by the deputies, who are familiar with the circumstances of the crime, and the authorities here, who noticed the sullenness of disposition and unwillingness to talk that has characterized the short stay of the Gunters in the city jail, that the men are practically certain of being convicted of murder in the first degree.

About 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon Archie Frazier, a young man about 20 years of age, came to police headquarters claiming to be the son of W. W. Frazier, the murdered man, and desiring to see his father's assailants. They, however, had already been taken away and the young fellow did not see them. He said that he was at work in the Proximity mills and in relating the tale of the horrible deed, practically corroborated the views held by the deputies. He also said that his mother and grandmother were both living and would be the chief prosecuting witnesses in court.

His Father Dead.

George Blakemore, of the local Southern Bell Telephone exchange, has returned from Staunton, Va., where he went last week to be at the bedside of his father, who died Thursday and was buried the following day.

Death of Infant.

Frances, the little 18 months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Steele, died Monday evening about 7 o'clock at the home of her parents, on Asheboro street. The body was carried yesterday by the bereaved parents to Donah, N. C., for burial.

Fined For Beating His Wife.

Ronnie Smith, a young white man of Proximity, was fined $31.10 by Squire Simms yesterday for wife-beating. He was carried to the county jail immediately after, being given a day in which to pay the money. In lieu of payment the young man will be forced to work out the fine on the roads, and at a late hour in the afternoon he was still in custody.

COBB LIKELY TO SURPASS BATTING RECORD IN 1911

T. Raymond Cobb, the wonderful outfielder of the Detroit Tigers, this season is out after a record that may stand side by side with the pyramids. The record in question is none other than the highest batting average ever compiled in big league warfare since Anson started the natives in 1879 by batting .407 for the year.

These are the .400 hitters of the game to date in 100 or more games: Duffy, Boston, 1884-123 games, average .438; Keeler, Baltimore, 1887-123 games, average .421; Burkett, Cleveland, 1888-112 games, average .423; Lajoie, Cleveland, 1901-121 games, average .423; Anson, Chicago, 1887-121 games, average .421; Burkett, Cleveland, 1886-123 games, average .420; Delahanty, Philadelphia, 1899-145 games, average .408.

Duffy of Boston, now head of the White Sox, holds the record to date, with .438.

These are the figures that Cobb must beat to get there, and the hope is that he has his chance to land. For example, the records of the past three years show that Cobb has hit each season above .400 after June 1.

This season, for the first time in his career, he turned June above the .400 mark and has now pounded his massive average above .450. July, August and September have always been his heaviest batting months, and if history repeats in this part of it he is liable to run up a set of figures never to be equaled by this or the succeeding generation of those whose main object in life is to "hit 'em where they ain't," too swiftly where they are or to where they can't even get.

DONOVAN PLEASES TAYLOR.

Manager of Boston Americans Does Not Mind if Owner Runs Team.

Patsy Donovan is probably proving himself the most satisfactory manager that the Boston club has ever had, because he does not appear to object to the interference of owner John I. Taylor.

The average man in charge of a ball team wants to be the boss. He wants to be consulted about when players are to be let out or others secured. Donovan, however, seems to differ in this respect, for he has not raised his voice against anything Taylor has done or intended.

All his predecessors forced themselves out of their jobs because they did not want Taylor to meddle with the team's affairs. Donovan has profited by their experience and is looking wise and saving wood.

Many Pitchers Are Good Batters. There are too many good hitters among the pitchers for them to be considered weak as a class with the bat just because some of them are especially weak. Also there is a good deal of latent hitting ability among them which wouldn't be latent if they had as much batting practice in games as the other players.

AN ECCENTRIC BACHELOR

By JOHN PHILIP ORTH

(Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.)

Mr. Phillip Raynor had come to be a bachelor of 40 when an event took place in his life. All that had gone before were incidents. Mr. Raynor had a small house of his own and a housekeeper. He was a man of regular habits, and his comings and goings were almost regulated by the clock. He belonged to a club or two, went to the theater now and then, and spent much time with his books. He was well content to be a bachelor.

One night, as Mr. Raynor was going home from his club, being on foot, as usual, he heard the screams of a woman from a dark passage ahead.

As a resident of the city for many years he paid taxes, and a portion of those taxes went to pay the police force. If there had been a policeman in sight—if there had been a pedestrian within call—the bachelor would not have let that scream disturb his serenity. As things were, he made a dash into the alley as a second scream reached his ears.

Just what followed, Mr. Raynor couldn't afterwards detail to the police very clearly. There were three men and a girl in the alley, and the men were trying to tear her away from her hold on a door. They were trying to kidnap her. The bachelor began to knock down, and he surprised himself as well as others. He didn't have it all his own way, of course. He got several good raps, but in time he conquered in the fight and found the girl in a faint. No police yet! They were interested elsewhere. There was a passing taxi, however, and the hard-breathing and bleeding bachelor halted it and had the girl conveyed to his home.

"If it's a case of abduction, sir," said the driver as he helped to lift the girl in, "it will be double fare and a present to boot. I never meddle with abductions at regular rates!"

The bachelor held a fist under his nose—a fist with every knuckle skinned and bleeding, and it needed no more.

The housekeeper had gone to bed. She was awakened to care for a strange girl about 19 years old—a girl poorly dressed—a girl who worked for a living. Her hair was down and her dress torn. She was just recovering consciousness as the housekeeper came down and exclaimed:

"My stars and garters, Mr. Raynor, but what have you done?"

"See to her—and out about her," he replied as he went away to make repairs to himself.

And next morning the housekeeper made a report. She had a motherly feeling towards the bachelor, and she began by asking:

"The girl has told me there was a row. Why didn't you leave it to the police?"

"None there."

"Then why didn't you walk on about your business?"

"Couldn't, I'm a man."

"Well, then, why did you bring her here? Why didn't you take her to a police station?"

"I don't know. Who is she?"

"She says she's an orphan, and has been working in a factory, but lost her place some time ago and—has been turned out of her room. She was passing the alley when the men seized her and you were—were—"

"Fool enough to interfere. I understand, Mrs. Harper. She has recovered, has she?"

"Yes."

"Orphan girl—no home—no work?"

"That's what she says."

"Then we must give her a show, Mrs. Harper. We may be in the same fix some day."

"You mean you will give her some money?"

"Oh, no, no! There's a bed for her in the house, and she can assist in the housework. No hurry about her going. Give her time to turn around. If she needs clothes, why, why—"

"I've been here twelve years, sir," said Mrs. Harper with her hand on the door, "and I never knew a thing like this to happen before!"

"No! Well, we never can tell what's going to happen, you know. I may talk with the girl later."

Mrs. Harper was past fifty and taking on weight. Although at first inclined to resent the presence of the girl, she was soon mollified and began to make use of her. She found a willing and obedient helper. A wardrobe was got together, and after three or four days Julia was assigned to wait on table when the bachelor took his meals. He had made no further inquiries about her.

When he saw her he quietly asked: "Are you the girl?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, make the coffee a bit stronger next time!"

"That was all for a month. Then, as he and the housekeeper were talking about other matters he suddenly asked:

"By the way, where do you get the flowers you place on the table every morning?"

"It's Julia does that, sir. She's very grateful to you."

"Queer girl to be grateful. Tell her it's all right without the flowers. What are you going to do with her?"

"Why, that's for you to say. She's been here over a month now."

"Well, wait another month. No hurry, you know."

Mrs. Harper could find no fault with Julia. On the other hand, she found much to praise. She could hardly see how she could get along without the girl, and yet she felt that the question of place ought to be settled. More than two months had gone past when she waylaid the bachelor one morning to say:

"I have discovered something you ought to know, sir."

"Have, eh?"

"Yes, sir. Julia is romantic."

"Well, that doesn't mean thirty days on the island, does it?"

"No, sir, but she thinks you are a hero."

"That's more serious."

"And being romantic and grateful, and thinking you a hero, she—she—"

Well, I believe the girl is in love with you and expects you to ask her to marry you. There it is, sir, and let me ask you what's to be done about it."

"H'm. H'm. I must take a walk in the park and think it over. We must be tender with Julia, Mrs. Harper."

In an hour the bachelor returned from his saunter and took a seat in the library and sent for Julia. She came with her heart in her mouth and confusion in her face, although Mrs. Harper had patted her on the back and told her to be brave.

"Julia," began Mr. Raynor, "if you made a solemn vow you'd keep it, wouldn't you?"

"I surely would, sir."

"I have made a solemn vow never to marry. You haven't. Therefore I shall marry you to that good-looking plumber's helper who was here the other day, and who certainly admires you. I shall give you a thousand dollars on your wedding day. I saw him hanging about last evening. You have my consent to admit him to the kitchen."

"Fine young man, Julia, and there's sixty per cent. profit in the plumbing business."

Through Mrs. Harper it was learned that Julia cried more or less for three long days. Then the plumber's helper was admitted to the kitchen, and he being a hustler, and Julia being ambitious to wear sables, the marriage came off within three months.

"Who'd-a thought it?" asked Mrs. Harper when all was over.

"Why, it was the only thing for an old bachelor to do," replied Mr. Raynor.

BAD NEWS FOR THE WIFE

Man Wrecked at Sea Is Saved and Tells Brother to Break It to His Mate.

Jerome S. McWade, the wealthy Duluth sociologist, was talking, at an Easter dinner, about the American heiress.

"She is beautiful and brilliant and all that," he said, "but with her millions, she is infernally independent. The penniless American youth who weds her has a hard time of it. He is put away in a year or so. Hence, from his point of view, the foreign nobleman is welcome to her, thank you. She is no Easter egg."

"The penniless nobleman's title holds his end up. The penniless American's end sinks. He is always afraid of being turned out in the cold. He can't call his soul his own."

"I know one of these poor chaps, married to a Philadelphia heiress—she has divorced him since to take on a banker—who once got wrecked at sea. But he was picked up floating on a spar, and from the first port wired to his brother:

"I am saved. Try and break it to my wife."

Mrs. Newedd's System.

"John," said Newedd's mother, "I picked up Florence's account book this morning and I must say I am disturbed over it. There are numerous entries of cash to G. K. W. Now who is this G. K. W. your wife is giving sums of money to?"

"Oh, that's all right, mother. You see Florence has a poor memory about expenditures, so whenever she comes out short she balances her accounts with G. K. W."

"And what in the world is G. K. W.?"

"Goodness knows what."

And Then the Dagger.

James T. Caesar and Harold Brutus lighted their cigars as they sat at the cafe table back of the Forum.

"El, tu, Brutus!" said Caesar.

"I've et three," replied Brutus, idly saying the check.

Which shows that cream puffs in these days were enticing.

Foley Kidney Pills are composed of ingredients specially selected for their corrective, healing, tonic, and stimulating effect upon the kidneys, bladder and urinary passages. They are antiseptic, antilithic and a uric acid solvent. Howard Gardner.

Hay Fever and Summer Colds
Must be relieved quickly and Foley's Honey and Tar Compound will do it. E. M. Stewart, 1034 Wolfram St., Chicago, writes: "I have been greatly troubled during the hot summer months with Hay Fever and find that by using Foley's Honey and Tar Compound I get great relief." Many others who suffer similarly will be glad to benefit by Mr. Stewart's experience. Howard Gardner.

Everybody offers explanations, but few people believe them.

Honest Medicines Versus Fakes.

President Taft's recent message suggesting an amendment to the Pure Food and Drugs law in its relation to Prepared Medicines, does not refer to such standard medicines as Foley's Honey and Tar Compound and Foley's Kidney Pills, both of which are true medicines carefully compounded of ingredients whose medicinal qualities are recognized by the medical profession itself as the best known remedial agents for the diseases they are intended to counteract. For over three decades Foley's Honey and Tar Compound has been a standard remedy for coughs, colds and affections of the throat, chest and lungs for children and for grown persons, and it retains today its pre-eminence above all other preparations of its kind. Foley Kidney Pills are equally effective and meritorious. Howard Gardner.

If you want to make good there is no time like the present.

Those Who Take Foley Kidney Pills
For their kidney and bladder ailments, and for annoying urinary irregularities are always grateful both for the quick and permanent relief they afford, and for their tonic and strengthening effect as well. Try Foley Kidney Pills. Howard Gardner.

Young Prince of Wales Receives Insignia of Order of the Garter

ONE of the important events of the recent coronation festivities in London was the investiture of the Prince of Wales with the insignia of the Order of the Garter. The affair was conducted with great pomp, ex-King Manuel of Portugal taking a prominent part. In the above picture the ex-ruler is shown preceding the future ruler of Great Britain. The Order of the Garter is so old that its origin is a matter of doubt. Some historians say that it was founded by King Richard I. at the siege of Acre, when he caused certain of his officers to tie leather thongs around their legs as a distinction. The generally accepted story, however, is that it owes its existence to King Edward III., who picked up a garter dropped by the Countess of Salisbury at a ball and adjusted it around his own royal leg with the remark, "Honi soit qui mal y pense." This remark, which means, "Shame be to him who thinks evil of it," usually translated as "Evil to him who evil thinks," became the motto of the order when it was instituted by Edward III. some time about 1350. The number of knights of the Garter is limited to twenty-six, including the reigning sovereign, though since 1786 princes of the blood have been admitted as supernumerary members. The order is frequently conferred on rulers of other nations. The emblem of the order consists of a garter of dark blue ribbon edged with gold bearing the motto, a pendant of gold, a mantle of blue velvet with a hood of crimson velvet, a hat of black velvet bearing a plume of white ostrich feathers having in the center a tuft of black heron's feathers and a gold collar made of twenty-six pieces, each in the form of a garter.

CRUISER HARD AGROUND.

Haitian Man-of-War is Reported in a Dangerous Position.

New York, July 11.—The Hamburg-American line steamship Allemania brought news today that the Haitian man-of-war Antoine Simon had gone hard aground off Gonaves, 30 miles from Port-au-Prince. The Simon was recently known as the Consul Grostuck, and on it ex-President Castro was supposed to have reached the West Indies. On arrival at Haiti, the Italian crew struck and the President Simon was manned with a native crew and set sail. The cruiser soon went ashore and the Allemania reported it in a dangerous position.

The average man would want to be president of a railroad before he could tell an airbrake from a locomotive.

SIMPLE AND PRETTY BODICE

Will Look Well in Cloth or Linen to Be Worn With Skirt of Same.

This is simple and would look well in cloth or linen to be worn with skirt of the same; gulfure lace is used for the under-sleeves and yoke, this is continued at center front to waist. A band of satin forms an edging, pieces of it are taken at intervals across the lace strip; the over-sleeve is trimmed in the same way. Two tucks are made on each shoulder, stitched a few inches down both back and front.

Materials required: 1½ yards 46 inches wide, ½ yard satin, 1 yard lace.

VEILS FOR YOUTHFUL BRIDES

Raw-Edged Tulle is Most Favored—Girls' Height Decides Quantity Needed.

The veil most approved for very youthful brides is of raw-edged tulle. The girl's height decides the quantity needed, as well as the length of her skirt. The drop over the face is far shorter than that at the back, and after the veil is adjusted on the head the bottom is slashed with big shears to follow the lines of the skirt.

A Juliet cap, made solidly of orange blossoms, is a pretty finish for a tulle veil. It is put on after the tulle is arranged on the head, and the veil may be slashed away at the front to show only a little ruffle under the cap; but tradition still calls for a great extent for veiling the face, even though many brides prefer the veil that drops only at the sides and back. For dresses trimmed with beads the Juliet caps are in matching pearls or crystals, the flat tops and bunched sides of the little flaring proving a very becoming finish to the face.

A Judy-cap arrangement is very popular for the lace veil, a gathering of one corner of this, under a wreath of orange blossoms giving the cap look. The cap part sits low down on the head, and at a smart wedding the head fixings of the bridesmaids may be genuine caps covering the head in this mop way.

These are the two arrangements set forth by fashion as the newest styles for bridal veils, but as becomingness is still a most important matter, many brides have their veils caught up at the last moment in any way that suits the face. So there are veils that hang only at the back of the head, tulle veils that hang over the face or that leave it exposed, high head arrangements and low ones. But if one wants the absolutely fashionable thing, have some sort of a broad low cap fixing for the top of the head, a mop gathering for lace, and the Juliet bonnet for tulle.

A girl has the neatest way of letting a man make her understand questions at which she could lose him.

PATRIOTS COULDN'T CONNECT WITH THE BENDERS OF HAYES

Electricians Slab Artist Had Everything His Way at Cone Park Yesterday.

The Patriots' supply of hits were exhausted on Monday and yesterday they were able to get only two singles and a couple of bunts off the Anderson twirler. On the other hand the Electricians were in a batting humor and pounded Eldridge out of the box in the second inning. As has been presumed the Electricians won, the score being four to one.

The game went for two hours and after the first inning was a pretty fielding exhibition. Rickard misjudged a long drive to center that counted a three-bagger and the next ball got by him on a bad bound just as he was preparing to corral the sphere. However, he retrieved himself in the sixth when he made a spectacular catch of Brannon's drive to right center and whipped the ball to second before the runner could return to that station, completing an almost impossible double. Jim Kelly in the right garden made several spectacular catches that robbed the Patriots of what the spectators had already conceded as hits.

Eldridge worked the first two men who faced him in short order, but Taylor, the third man, sent the ball far into the center, curving to the left. Rickard was not prepared for the deep curve and the sphere went rolling to the fence, Taylor drawing up on the third station. Kelly, J., then plugged the sphere for a grounder over second that went bounding along, jumping from in front of Rickard just as he was reaching after it. Taylor scored and Kelly reached the third station. Yount flew out to Doyle. In the second inning Fogarty singled and advanced to second when McAndrew fouled out to Stewart. Brannon then came to bat and pounded the sphere with such force that it went sailing over the right field fence for the second home run of the season on the local grounds. This fairly unvaried Rube and he issued passes to the next two batters. Walters then relieved Eldridge and the next two were easy outs. The Electricians scored again in the ninth. W. Kelly led off with a three-bagger to right center and scored on McCoy's sacrifice fly to left field.

The Patriots' lone run came in the initial frame. Rickard drew a pass and was sacrificed by Doyle. Fuller was safe on error of short. Rickard scored on Doak's sacrifice fly to deep center. In the eighth things looked good for the Patriots when Stewart walked and Walters was safe on a bunt. However, Stewart was caught napping off second and Rickard forced Walters at second. Rickard was caught trying to steal. In the final frame Doyle walked and Fuller went out to short. W. Kelly robbing him of a hit by a two-foot jump. Doak bunted and was safe and Clapp flew out to left. Lowman walked, filling the bases, but Carroll fanned.

DIAMOND DUST

Winston's coming down.
Edwards the Conceited has been released by Clancy.

Why didn't the Patriots save a few of those hits Monday for yesterday's contest.

Clark, the second-baseman for Anderson, is sick and is threatened with typhoid fever.

"Tiny" has a sore finger, but didn't let that interfere with his catching.

Manager Kelly was grabbing everything that came his way.

Charlotte's release was doing fine work on the knoll yesterday.

Brannon is the second man to knock a home run in Greensboro and get 72 packages of Bull Durham smoking tobacco this season.

Patriots are getting the double plays down to a science these days.

Rickard was playing his customary star ball in center field yesterday, a misjudged fly alone passing him.

Winston's winning streak is about at an end, is our opinion. Without some changes in the line-up they can hardly win the rest of the season as they have for the last month.

The teams shift around tomorrow. Billy Laval will bring his band of Spartan Musicians here for the remainder of the week.

If Greensboro wants us to catch up with them they'll have to lose a few also, or it will be a physical impossibility to overtake them.—Charlotte Chronicle.

The Red Sox pulled themselves out of the cellar by defeating the Twins, and the Greensboro fans are considering a vote of thanks to the Spartan for doing the trick.—Charlotte Chronicle.

TWINS GIVEN A SECOND SHOVE DOWN PENNANT LADDER

Spartanburg, July 11.—The Musicians again conquered the Twins and sent them a few points southward on the pennant ladder by holding the large end of a 4 to 3 score. The Red Sox played all around their opponents at the bat but were charged with seven errors in the field, which however were scattered and did not give the Clancyites an opportunity to beat them out in the exciting contest.

HOME RUNS WERE PLENTIFUL IN GREENVILLE GAME

For the locals, Sharp and Doak got two baggers and Manager Smith and Doak got home runs. For the visitors, Garman doubled, Counts got two three baggers and Malcolmson got a home run, both local homers came in the fifth when Sheesley and Malcolmson crossed signals and each got mad. CARD GAME FIGHT MAY END FATALLY.

A young white man of Mt. Airy, Claude Childress, was brought down yesterday at noon from his home and taken to St. Leo's Hospital to receive treatment for a serious injury on his head received in a fight with two companions. Although his skull is fractured and extremely delicate operations were necessary in dressing the wound a report from his bedside early this morning stated that he was resting nicely and his recovery is now confidently expected by the attending physicians.

Childress was having a game of cards with two white boys, by name Bentley and Henis, when a fight followed a dispute and the wounded man was jointly attacked by the pair, having his skull seriously injured by a blow from some blunt weapon. They are at present in jail without bail at Mt. Airy for the crime.

A Triple Killing. Special to Telegram.

Newark, N. J., July 11.—A triple killing in which 2 were killed occurred in Newark today. Harry Holzworth shot and killed his wife, sent a bullet into the body of Mrs. Daisy Benzel and then shot and killed himself. It is said a quarrel between the husband and wife preceded the tragedy. Mrs. Benzel received her wound when she attempted to act as a peacemaker between the couple.

Brief Session of Municipal Court.

In Municipal court yesterday morning the conclusion of the affray with deadly weapons between two negroes, Charlie Black and Will Hemphill, was reached by reducing the fine of $50 and the costs imposed upon the former prisoner on the preceding day to $30 and the costs and giving Hemphill the same amount.

Four young white men were tried on the charge of driving automobiles without a rear light. W. C. Boren, Jr., Mordecai Hubbard, Roy Millikan and Jake Oettinger were rounded up by the police on this charge, and though all were technically guilty each had an excellent excuse for the fact that the lights were not burning. As it was the first offense for the defendants Judge Eure dismissed the cases with advice not to again appear in court.

Bob Coble, white, was fined $7.50 plus the costs for a case of drunk and down.

Enormous Cigarette Consumption.

South Africa smokes 650,000,000 cigarettes per annum, and well over 600,000,000 of them are retailed in six-cent packets. Evidence to this somewhat startling effect was given recently by witnesses possessing special knowledge before the industries commission at Cape Town. The effect of this enormous consumption of tobacco upon the physical health of the population, must be considerable, and the Union government is being earnestly urged to take the question up. The Boy Scout movement is being greatly encouraged as it is expected that it will counteract and decrease the spread of the habit among the youthful inhabitants of the country.
